2. Cervical Smear Test – End to Woman's suffering

Cervical smear test is the key to an alert but enjoyable life. This test is also known as the pap smear test or the Papanicolaou test, which helps determine the signs for cervical cancer. The inventor of this test was the Greek doctor Georgios Papanicolaou, and hence the name. Cervical cancer is one of the most common cancers in women.

The smear test checks the signs for cancer of the cervix, a part of the uterus (also known as 'neck of the womb') by looking out for any abnormality or signs of changing cells for pre-cancerous conditions. As there is ignorance prevailing about the precancerous conditions and Pap smear testing, many women suffer silently, unaware about all the involvements.

The cervix does not play a role in a non-pregnant women but it helps to maintain pregnancy. The cervical smear test should be done regularly to detect any changes in the cells before it becomes cancerous. Sometimes, it may take years to detect these changes and women find it an ordeal to cope with the anxiety. Early diagnosis and treatment in precancerous cells can prevent cancer. The test detects early changes in the squamous cells rather than adenocarcinoma.

The treatment of early stage of cancer growth may be treated with surgery or radiotherapy. The cervical cancer may be diagnosed by a biopsy of the cervix. The internal examination is called a colposcopy. The severity also decides the mode of treatment for instance, a radical hysterectomy. There are no definite causes for cervical cancer but factors like smoking and viral infection of the cervix are said to increase the risk.

The procedure for pap smear testing involves insertion of a special instrument known as speculum, for opening the vagina and collecting sample cells to be checked microscopically. The detailed videos of the test can be seen with the help of top medical videos. It is advisable to start the pap smear tests at the age of 21 when sex activity starts. Regular tests should be taken by women between the ages of 18 to 65.

You may need testing if you have symptoms of BV. Your health care provider will prescribe an antibiotic treatment that will be safe to take during pregnancy. If your results show no BV bacteria, your health care provider may do more tests to find out the cause of your symptoms. If you have questions about your results, talk to your health care provider. Learn more about laboratory tests, reference ranges, and understanding results. You will get a gown or sheet as a cover. You will lie on your back on an exam table, with your feet in stirrups. Your health care provider will insert a special tool called a speculum into your vagina. These include: A gray or white vaginal discharge, A strong, fish-like odor, which may be worse after sex, Pain and/or itching in the vagina, Burning sensation when urinating. A BV test is done in a similar way as a pelvic exam or Pap smear. Untreated BV may increase your risk of getting a sexually transmitted disease (STD), such as chlamydia, gonorrhea, or HIV. If you are pregnant and have a BV infection, it can increase your risk of having a premature (early) delivery or having a baby with a lower than normal birth weight (less than 5 pounds, 8 ounces at birth). Other STIs: HPV is the most common sexually transmitted infection that causes cervical abnormalities, but it isn't the only one. So if you are diagnosed with BV and have a male sexual partner, he will not need to be tested. A BV infection happens when the normal balance is upset and more bad bacteria grow than good bacteria. Most BV infections are mild and sometimes go away on their own. If you receive an abnormal Pap result, your doctor will probably ask you to come back for a follow-up appointment. Here's What You Need to Know: Women's Healthcare Associates. You may feel some mild discomfort when the speculum is put in your vagina. These include: Don't use douches. Limit your number of sex partners. Practice safe sex. Learn how to cite this January 17, 2018. Family Medicine / Gyna. Papanicolaou Test, or Papanicolaou, is a quick and easy examination detecting the canaling of the use of the building. You should not use buffers, buffers or having sex for at least 24 hours before the test. Possible Causes of Abnormal Squatters Some conditions can cause you to receive an abnormal result in your Papanicolaou, including: HPV Human papillomavirus (HPV) is a sexually transmitted infection incredibly common. At least an HPV strain will infect almost all sexually active people on Earth. Although an abnormal test result may be worrying, this does not necessarily mean that you have cancer. This is the cause of most abnormal PAP results, and most of these cases are remedied by their body alone. The BV is not transmitted through sexual contact between women.
